Join our Community Advisory Committee

In order to improve our operations, Queensland Alumina Limited (QAL) is creating a Community Advisory Committee that will support our operational decision-making by drawing on local knowledge.

We're looking for people that represent the following community interest areas:

- Education / Parent
- Youth
- Health
- Environment
- Near Neighbour
- Business
- Senior
- Emergency Response
- Multicultural
- Social Services / Community Group

The Community Advisory Committee meets three times per year for approximately two hours, with representatives from QAL management. In the meetings we'll review and discuss our operations, environmental performance, safety, project investments, and community involvement related to plant operations, as well as other issues raised by QAL or the Community Advisory Committee.

As a volunteer member, your role is to attend these meetings and provide open, honest feedback and advice on proposed projects, issues, and other areas of activity, so that QAL can best address the community's needs and aspirations. Download our Terms of Reference to find out more.
